At Home on the Farm is an LCGA commissioned exhibition by painter, Mary Burke. The exhibition will consist of a series of paintings that reflect the working life of farmers in County Limerick, part of the Golden Vale. Over the past two years, Mary has documented five farms of different scales, with different approaches to how they make their living. This is not a political diatribe nor is it a romantic view of the Irish landscape, rather it is a raw version of the passion that each of these people have for their farms and their ways of making a livelihood. It also coincides with a time when there are many changes to farming practices with many concerns about how viable the “family-owned” farm model is.

View the virtual exhibition and our series of events which accompany the exhibition on www.gallery.limerick.ie & www.limerickgallerypages.com

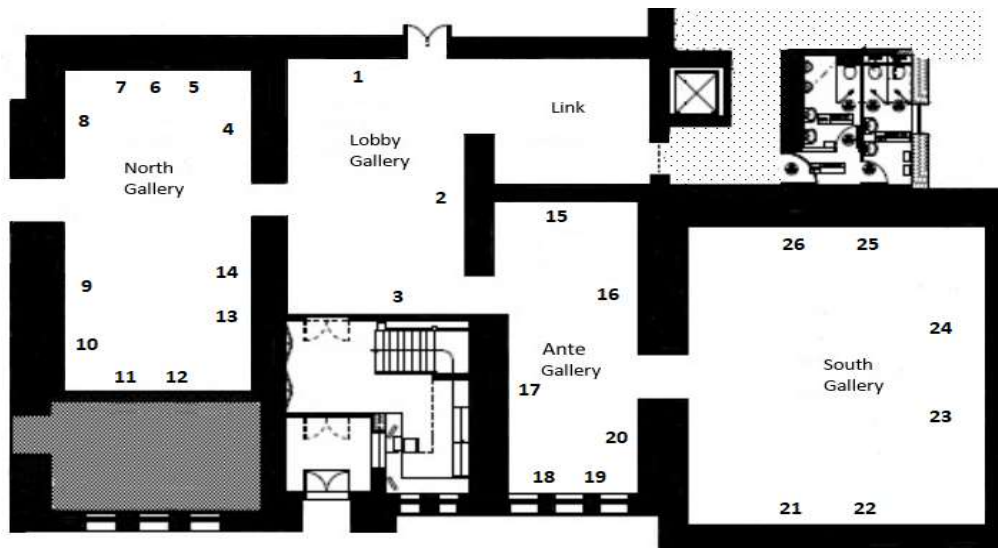

The exhibition is accompanied by a publication with essays by Manchan Magan, Niamh NicGhabhann, please contact artgallery for copies of the publication.
